

Senator Clark is Ready To Rescue Neutrality Inquiry From Failure

Son of Late Champ Clark Endeavors to Soothe Ruffled Spirits of Senate After the Nye-Glass Flareup.

RUINS INQUIRY

Powerful Democratic Senators Say That Nye Committee's Probe is "All Washed Up."

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP).—Senator Clark (D-Mo.) was believed to be ready today for an attempt to rescue a neutrality inquiry that is foundering in a sea of Democratic indignation in the Senate.

The son of the late Champ Clark, famous speaker of the House in bygone days, had indicated he would seek to speak to the Senate today in the aftermath of a row that flamed to a climax yesterday when Senator Glass (D-Va.) shouted "coward" and "demagogue" at Senator Nye (R.-ND).

Nye, as chairman of a Senate committee which is investigating World War trade and financing with a view to drastic new neutrality legislation, had charged that Woodrow Wilson "falsified" a major point of war history. Clark had backed him up to the extent of saying there were "incompetencies" in published records and secret documents.

So widespread was the anger that Nye's charge aroused among powerful Democratic Senators that there were free predictions the Nye committee's inquiry was about "all washed up," that it would get no more funds.

But Clark, when asked if the neutrality investigators would change their course said shortly:

"Why should we?"

Nye insisted documents showed that Wilson did not state facts when he told a Senate committee he did not know until after the war that the allies had secret treaties to repartition Europe. Those treaties have been stressed by those who attack the allies' motives and say the United States should have stayed out of the conflict.

Pounding his desk, Glass assailed "the unimpeachable accusation against a dead President, dirt-daubing the sepulchre of Woodrow Wilson."

Glass an d other senators indicated they would not vote "another dollar" to Nye's committee, which is practically out of funds. But Nye indicated he would go ahead, investigators working without pay. J. P. Morgan and partners are scheduled to return to the stand next Thursday.

Secretary Hull announced today he had submitted to Attorney General Cummings for "appropriate action" the names of more than a score of munition manufacturing companies which have failed to register with the State Department in compliance with the Neutrality Act.

VAN DEUSEN UNDERWENT OPERATION YESTERDAY

Fred L. Van Deusen, president of the Kingston Shriners' Association, and widely known magician, underwent an operation for an attack of acute appendicitis at the Kingston Hospital late yesterday. The operation was performed by Dr. Frederick Snyder and Mr. Van Deusen's condition was reported as fair today at the hospital.

Mr. Van Deusen is employed by the Kingston Water department and Friday morning was suddenly taken ill and forced to go home where his condition steadily grew worse. Dr. Snyder was called and advised his removal to the hospital where it was found necessary to perform an operation at once.

Robert Dunn Killed By Train Here Friday Identified by Brother

Richard Dunn of Sawkill last night identified as his brother the man who had been hit by the New York Central freight train at 9:40 in the morning under the Washington avenue viaduct. The victim's name was Robert, not John as was reported, and he was 65. Dr. John B. Krom after a casual examination judged him to be about 60. The name John was given to the police by James Kouhoup, only eye-witness to the tragedy, who knew him as "Johnny" Dunn.

Surviving besides Richard Dunn are four other brothers and three sisters. They are Patrick of Brooklyn, Joseph and James of New York City and William of Sawkill; Mrs. Namie Caruneck and Mrs. Bridget Sullivan of New York and Mrs. Kate Bruckner of Brooklyn.

Mr. Dunn, who died of internal injuries, a hemorrhage of the pleural cavity and fractured spine, was an old quarryman. He lived for several years in a house at the summit of Jockey Hill about three miles from Kingston.

When hit by the train on the Catskill Mountain Branch of the New York Central yesterday morning, he was returning from a shopping trip to Kingston. He had bought provisions at the store of Abraham Garber on Washington avenue near the viaduct.

James Kouhoup of 436 Washington avenue, sitting in the window of his apartment, watching for the postman, saw Dunn walk across the tracks. Kouhoup said he apparently looked to see if there was a train in sight, but evidently did not see the approaching freight which struck him when he was almost across.

An autopsy was ordered by District Attorney Cleon B. Murray and Coroner Lester D. DuBois. It was performed at the W. N. Conner morgue on Fair street by Dr. Frederick Snyder. Dr. John B. Krom and Dr. J. S. Taylor of the city laboratory. They said death was due to hemorrhage of the pleural cavity and a fractured spine.

The autopsy was performed to determine whether Dunn might have suffered some physical ailment such as a heart attack just as the train came along, because Kouhoup said he stepped directly in front of it. The path on which he walked was icy.

Funeral arrangements were expected to be completed today on the arrival of relatives from New York.

Dedicate Roosevelt Memorial Sunday

New York, Jan. 18 (AP).—After 16 years of preparation New York state will dedicate tomorrow its $2,500,000 memorial to Theodore Roosevelt.

President Roosevelt will deliver the principal address in honor of his cousin and predecessor in the White House. The two persons most interested in the memorial, however, will be absent.

Mrs. Edith Kermit Roosevelt, widow of the 26th president, will return to the dedication by radio in the Long Island hospital where she is confined because of a broken hip.

Henry Fairfield Osborn, who originated the idea for the memorial in 1919 shortly after Roosevelt's death, died a few months ago.

The memorial stands just north of the American Museum of Natural History overlooking Central Park. A 344 foot concrete base to the Roman type building through a pink granite facade.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 18.—Governor Hoffman intensified today his search for other persons besides Bruno Richard Hauptmann who might have been involved in the kidnap-killing of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

Details of the search were kept secret, the governor having announced that in due course he would give his reasons for doubting that any one man could have committed the crime.

"Impachment proceedings represent only one of the threats leveled against me," Hoffman said in defending his granting of a reprieve.

Much mail has come to the 33-year-old executive's desk, especially since his visit to Hauptmann's cell last October. All principals in the case have received threatening and crank letters at one time or another. The governor's office gave no details, however, of threats other than those.

Hoffman's political foes declined to discuss the possibility of impeachment proceedings. They realized that an impeachment attempt would founder on the rocks of Republican majorities in both branches of the State Legislature. The governor is a Republican.

No Order Known

Although Hoffman announced his intention to order state police to "continue their search for any other person or persons involved in the crime," no such order had been issued today, as far as could be learned.

Among reports current was one that police of several midwestern cities had been asked to be on the watch for a suspect, not identified. Another said New York police were on the trail of a woman believed to have been an accomplice in the crime. There was no comment here on either report.

The investigation of the governor, who says that he never has expressed an opinion on the guilt or innocence of Hauptmann, sought to answer these questions:

Could this crime have been committed by any one man?

Was Hauptmann in the Lindbergh nursery the night of the crime?

What part did passion and prejudice play in his conviction?

Were some of the state's chief witnesses untruthful and mentally incompetent?

Were law enforcement agencies over-eager to close the books on a great crime mystery?

Officials concerned with investigation of the kidnaping and the prosecution of Hauptmann felt that all questions raised by Hoffman had been answered in the Flemington trial which resulted in the death penalty for Hauptmann.

Witnesses Convicted

In his summation at the trial last February Attorney General David T. Wilentz said:

"Every bit of evidence, every scintilla of evidence, every living person that knows anything about it, every living policeman, every government agent, every one of the constituted authorities, finds himself in the same position—all that evidence leads only to Hauptmann, only to Hauptmann."

Colonel Lindbergh testified:

"I know of no facts that will show or to me indicate definitely there was more than one man."

There was much speculation as to what course Hauptmann's counsel might take in these days of grace to save the prisoner's life—days of grace that total 20 technically, though Hauptmann cannot be executed for at least two months.

The only avenue open to them was to procure new evidence. The attorneys in their desperate court action of the last week made no claim to possessing such evidence.

Hoffman Differed

Governor Hoffman, however, speaks of "evidence that is in my hands."

It was learned that he has been given expert opinion which leads him to question the state's charge that Hauptmann wrote the ransom notes.

The governor's future course in the matter of Dr. John F. Condon remains to be decided.

He has made no secret of his dissatisfaction with some of the statements made by "Jafko" and he has referred to published accounts of the Lindbergh case by Condon as "highly significant."

"I question the truthfulness and mental competency of some of the chief witnesses for the state," the governor also said yesterday.

Purpose Opening

Because of a lack of interest on the part of a number of the churches, which is so necessary to the program of the school and the cause of religious education, containing a substantial lack of financial support is the undertaking, the executive committee of the Kingston Lutheran Training School has voted to postpone the opening of the school this year. All superintendents of schools are asked to notify their boards of this action of the committee.

New Farm Bill Planned As Rider to Make it Law For Cotton Planting For English Monarch

Administration Leaders Plan to Attach Farm Measure to Offices' Appropriation Bill as Rider to Get Quick Action.

WILL IT SURVIVE?

New Measure Argued as Unconstitutional by Some Senators, Others Would Change Court.

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP).—With the New Deal ready to put its new farm program into operation at once, Senate leaders today devised a plan for speeding it through Congress as a rider to an appropriation bill.

Anxious to get the plan into effect before cotton planting starts in the far southern states, administration leaders proposed to add it to the independent offices appropriation bill which passed the House yesterday.

Five major farm organizations, meeting at the National Agricultural Conference, went on record last night as endorsing the program to obtain production through a system of subsidized soil conservation.

Two Questions

Discussion revolved today around two questions.

Will the new program survive a supreme court test if it is ever brought before that tribunal?

What means will be used to finance it?

At the first point, it was learned today that Senator Norris (R., Neb.) and Senator Pope (D., Ida.) have joined hands in conducting a survey to see what sentiment there is in Congress to bulwark farm relief and other legislation against blows from the courts.

On the second question, L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, advanced the idea of impounding all tariff receipts to obtain necessary funds without new taxation.

Sensor Pope said the proposed plan to pay benefits to farmers to diversify crops in such a way as to prevent erosion, improve fertility and keep production of major crops at a desired level probably was unconstitutional in the light of the supreme court's ruling on AAA.

Would Limit Court

The senator, expressing personal approval of controlled production, took the position that all possibility of New Farm program meeting AAA's fate should be removed by a law limiting the power of the courts.

He and Senator Norris conferred yesterday on a proposed bill by Pope, and the Idaho senator said he "expected to interview half a dozen senators today." He has a temporary draft which may be amended later.

As the bill stood today no act of Congress could be declared unconstitutional except by more than two-thirds vote of the supreme court. Pope suggested at least a seven to two division of the nine members. AAA was invalidated by a six to three vote.

Sensor Norris had expressed views somewhat similar to those of Pope a few days before.

Many Inquiries

Thousands of inquiries poured in to this little village of 100 persons, about 100 miles northeast of London, seeking news of the monarch.

The guarded professional language of the bulletins issued by the king's doctors started a wave of deepest concern.

One medical authority said it "shows the doctors are really worried."

The nation and the empire remembered the anxious times seven years ago, when, for days, the monarch's life hung in the balance. Two operations to drain fluid from his chest were followed by tense days of waiting before he finally recuperated.

King George and Queen Mary came to Sandringham from London December 12 for the traditional royal family Christmas party.

The full, disquieting nature of the monarch's illness overshadowed for the English public even the death of Rudyard Kipling.

Decline Commenced

Sandringham house officials declined either to confirm or deny reports that the monarch took a turn for the worse during the night.

The Prince of Wales came from London in the royal courier train to Norfolk about 100 miles northeast of London, but his stay was described at Sandringham House as "ordinary."

Last year's jubilee celebrations, marking the 25th anniversary of the sovereign's accession to the throne, imposed a considerable strain on his health, involving as they did numerous public appearances and a series of drives through London.

Although he came through this period very well, the king suffered an attack of influenza early last June while at Sandringham and had to rest for a fortnight.

Heart Weakness And Cold Cause Anxiety For Cotton Planting For English Monarch

Noted Heart Specialist Called to Treat George V as Doctors Order Oxygen Administered to Alleviate Catarrhal Condition.

CONCERN FELT

Guarded Words in Statements Issued by Doctors Cause Wave of Deep Concern.

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press)

Sandringham, England, Jan. 18.—The physicians to his majesty, the 70-year-old King George, announced today that anxiety over his condition persisted, after a heart weakness developed from a sudden cold.

One of England's most noted heart specialists was summoned from London to the bedside of the monarch, to join the three physicians already in attendance.

A short time after the specialist, Sir Maurice A. Cassidy, left London by train, it was learned authoritatively that oxygen was administered to the sovereign during the night.

It was hastily explained, however, that oxygen is a modern treatment for a catarrhal condition, such as that suffered by his majesty, and has been administered to the king several times during recent years in fighting that ailment.

The bronchial catarrh was complicated by more serious "signs of cardiac weakness," which even the guarded language of the king's physicians conceded was causing "some disquiet."

After disclosing this development in a bulletin last night, the physicians said today in a statement timed 10:15 a. m. (5:15 a. m. E. S. T.):

"The anxiety expressed in the bulletin of last night persists."

Oxygen was brought to Sandringham House, the royal country estate and the king's favorite palace, yesterday by Lord Dawson of Penn, who with two other of the ruler's physicians spent the night in the palace, ready for instant call.

Pathetic Nurse

While the faithful Nurse Black, who was with King George all through his serious illness of 1928 and 1929 remained near his bedside, Lord Dawson and Sir Frederick Stanley Hewitt and Sir Frederick J. Williams stayed in rooms not far away.

Williams, who lives at Sandringham, left the palace this morning, but Lord Dawson and Hewitt remained, awaiting the arrival of Sir Maurice Cassidy.

A number of windows of the large, rambling old royal residence remained lighted all through the snowy windy night. A bitter east wind whipped the palace grounds this morning.

Snow sprayed from the eaves as villagers and country folk inquired solicitously at the gate concerning his condition.

The anxiety of the Norfolk countryside was not less tense than that throughout the country and the empire.

Bonus Measure Is Driven Toward Vote In The Senate

REMOVE THE SNOW

It is to be hoped that the Board of Public Works will see fit to remove the snow from the streets as soon as the present storm abates, and not trust to "guesses" from nearby cities that "warmer weather is coming," thus melting the snow and alleviating the necessity of its removal. The snow removal fund is for the purpose of clearing the streets, and it will cost no more, perhaps less, to remove it promptly.

Leaders, Confident Bill Will Sweep to Victory in Senate Before Close of Day, Curb Debate Length.

3 AMENDMENTS

Three Changes Stand in Way of a Final Vote in the Senate Today.

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP).—Flatly declaring that the baby bonus payment bill will become law whether President Roosevelt vetoes it or not, champions of the measure drove it toward an imminent Senate vote today.

Administration leaders confidently predicted it would sweep to passage in the chamber before the day was out. To hasten the vote, the Senate had agreed that a drastic curbs on debate would go into effect in mid-afternoon. Democratic chiefs who favor the bill conceded only 18 votes to the opposition, out of 90-odd expected to be cast.

Forecasts were heard that the bill, which offers cashable $50 bonds to pay off around $2,000,000,000 of adjusted service certificates, would gain quick concurrence by the House.

That branch passed a bill last week also providing for full and immediate payment of the 1945 maturity value of the certificates, but omitted a method of payment. The Senate bill provides that the bonds may be cashed on or after next June 15. Speaker Byrns has said the House was "in a humor" to accept this bill in place of its own.

Three amendments stood in the way of a final Senate vote today—that of Senator Thomas (D., Okla.) authorizing the President to use new currency to discharge the veterans' debt, another by Senator Klor (D., Utah) to pay only the present or cash surrender value of the certificates, and a third by Senator Schwelb (D., Wash.) providing that bonus recipients shall still be eligible for work relief.

Only the latter had a chance of adoption, administration leaders said.

Debate Opens

Senator Thomas opened the day's debate with an argument that the coalition bill may require at least three bond issues.

Counting estimated federal deficits for this and next fiscal year, refunding operations, the bonus, relief, and money to pay farmers and possibly processing taxpayers, Thomas said the government "may have to issue $15,000,000,000 in bonds" in the next 17 months.

He estimated the bond bonus bill would require issuance of more than $5,000,000,000 bonds. Each of the 3-500,000 veterans would receive an average of 15 baby bonds, he said.

"That's printing press order number one," he added. "Printing press order number two is to print bonds to raise cash to buy up the baby bonds."

A third bond issue, he said, would be necessary to raise funds to pay the $500,000,000 debt owed the United States life insurance fund for bonus loans.

Thomas calculated the bill eventually would require the printing of "over 100,000,000 pieces of paper."

"Then, this comes to become a bonus bill and becomes a relief bill," he asserted, referring to pulp manufacturers from whom the paper would be bought.

Alabama Tornado

Port Payne, Ala., Jan. 18 (AP).—A tornado swept the prosperous farming section on the eastern slope of Sand Mountain, 16 miles west of here today killing at least four persons, injuring an undetermined number and causing heavy property damage. Sherwood Case Goes To Jury at 10:48 A. M.

The former Salvation Army housewife and barmaid was charged with the murder of her son after he was found dead in a bathtub.

Two substitutes for the defense counsel that had been named at the time of the act, while two were substitutes for the state, testified for the state.

26 Killed Here During Past Year As Result of Automobile Accidents

Twenty-six people were killed in Ulster county during 1935 as a result of automobile accidents. In 1934 there were twenty-eight people killed and strangled as it may seem there were the same number of fatal accidents in both 1934 and 1935, twenty-five accidents each year. The difference in the number of deaths being attributed to the fact that in 1934 there were more accidents in which more than one person was killed.

A check-up of the figures and from records which have been kept by District Attorney Cleon B. Murray for the past two years it appears that Friday is the most dangerous day to be on Ulster county highways and November is the month which holds the record for number of deaths. July and August when there is the greater amount of summer traffic on Ulster county highways there are surprisingly few accidents.

In 1934 there were four fatal accidents in February and again in November there were four fatal accidents. In 1935 November was the leading month with six deaths and April came second with five. June and August each are credited with three fatal accidents each. As to days on which accidents happen it appears that Friday is the day a driver takes most chances. In 1935 when Mr. Murray kept a very complete record of accidents resulting in deaths it appears that of the twenty-five accidents which took place in this county during the year seven of them happened on Fridays, there were four each on Tuesdays and Sundays, three each on Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays and Tuesday was the safer day to drive as only one death took place as a result of an automobile accident on that day.

In 1935 for about six weeks between June 30 and August 17, at almost the height of the tourist season, there was no fatal automobile accident in Ulster county, an indication that fatal accidents at least in Ulster county are not caused by heavy traffic but more through the care individual drivers exercise.

In 1934 District Attorney Cleon B. Murray began keeping a map record of where accidents happened in the county. When a fatal accident took place a pin was stuck in the map at that particular point as a marker and at the close of 1934 there were twenty-eight pins marking the scenes of twenty-eight accidents. This same method was adopted in 1935 but a more elaborate record was kept. A notation was made of the date, time, place and reason of the accident if the investigation brought to light the reason. The facts which this record revealed disclosed many interesting things, among them the fact that on days when traffic was exceptionally heavy there were few accidents which resulted in death. It was also noted that during the busy summer season when highways are free of ice and snow there were comparatively few accidents.

Sixty Passed Exams For Paid Fireman

At the office of the local Municipal Civil Service Commission this morning it was stated that the work of marking the papers of the recent examination held for paid fireman had been completed and that the applicants were being notified by mail for the percentage they made. It is understood that sixty applicants passed the examination, making the largest eligible list for the position of paid fireman in the history of the board. The list was not made public.

The Board of Municipal Commissioners will hold a meeting on January 23, but it is not expected that any appointments will be made at that time as there are no vacancies in the paid fire department at the present time. From what could be learned the fire board is planning to retire several of the older members of the department, and if that is done their places will be filled from the eligible list being prepared by the civil service board.

American Celebrity-Stalkers Sent Kipling Off To London

Rudyard Kipling, who died in a London hospital, was an unsuccessful job-hunter in America before fame touched him. Then he fled because autograph-seekers and other "lion" hunters pestered him.

By CHARLES NORMAN

New York (A)—Story-teller of the world, Rudyard Kipling brought the glamor of empire-making out of India and sent over the threshold of East and West, in prose and verse, a procession of lovable characters and unforgettable phrases. The author of "Kim," "Captains Courageous," "Gunga Din" and "Recessional," who was 70 years old December 20, 1935, found as much popularity in America as elsewhere in the English-speaking world.

In 1890, after writing "Departmental Ditties," "Plain Tales from the Hills," "Soldiers Three," "The Phantom Rickshaw" and other now famous volumes, he left India for England, via the United States.

Famous as he had become in India, the New World had not heard of him. In "The Light That Failed" he told of his months of discouragement going across the American continent from San Francisco to New York, an author whose works were unwanted, and unable to find a job.

The following year an English published brought out "Plain Tales from the Hills," and his reputation was made. Manuscripts that jammed his trunk made a rapid succession of successful books.

His second visit to New York brought romance. He married Caroline Balestier, the sister of an American writer he had known in London. They settled in Brattleboro, Vt. There he wrote more than 20 books, and there his two children were born. One, Lieutenant John Kipling, died in the World War. His daughter was married in London in 1925.

Dr. James Conland, of Brattleboro, was the physician of the Kipling household, and it was he who introduced the author to the ways of the Gloucester fishermen, which resulted in "Captains Courageous."

The Kiplings fled the American scene because of the importunities of hundreds of autograph seekers and "lion" hunters who would not let him alone. In his home at Brattleboro, Sussex, moats and walls have kept strangers away.

Saturday Social Review

College Women's Club Discuss 'Crime, Inc.'

The Kingston College Women's Club held the second of its annual forum discussions Tuesday evening at its regular meeting held at Mrs. Finch's Tea Room, 13 Pearl street. The group had chosen the timely topic of "Crime Incorporated," the background of which was presented to the audience by Mrs. Myron Teller, forum chairman. Dr. Elizabeth Moore Parsons opened the discussion by a very cogent explanation of the various theories of crime and its causes. She showed how truancy in the lower grades is often indicative of a tendency to crime, while truancy in the higher grammar school grades or high school is not necessarily so serious. Crime, the speaker explained, is an indulgence of youth, since first offenders are seldom over 30 years of age and usually in the late teens or early twenties.

Mrs. William J. Clark, who for several years was connected with the state school for delinquents in Vermont, and who for that reason brought to the discussion a fund of first hand information, further amplified Dr. Parsons' observation on the causes of juvenile delinquency and showed what was done in the school with which she was connected to help these maladjusted youths reënt themselves to society as valuable, self supporting and self respecting individuals. Mrs. Clark said that a large proportion of the juvenile delinquency could be avoided were these children given special training in school, including industrial work, at a far earlier age, before they had come to feel that they were misfits.

Miss Hull, at this time, volunteered that such educational work would benefit, not only the backward student, but also the taxpayer, since a year's training in public school costs more than $100 a year for each pupil, while to keep these students in a special corrective institution costs at a minimum $300.

Racketeering, one of the most startling phases of crime as it has developed in the United States, and the country's biggest and most profitable business, was briefly reviewed by Miss Agnes Scott Smith. Racketeering, with the advent of prohibition, went big business and today it is as completely and efficiently organized as Standard Oil, United States Steel or General Motors, with a board of directors, meeting in one of the larger office buildings overlooking Times Square and committee projects.

FIRESIDE GARDENING

This is the season when the seed
 catalogs brighten the mail and set the gardeners of the nation to happy and constructive planning. It does not matter that few garden roses
 equal in size and perfection the pictured ones, or that things go wrong with the back yard vegetables which never affect those in the seed books.
 The next season's catalogs inspire the same hope and faith and set in motion the same pleasant activities.

There is this to be said for amateur gardening. Unless it is a complete failure—which it rarely is—there are always rich rewards for those who pursue it. The perennial bed may look a little ragged at times,
 but it gains in charm from year to year. It takes constant vigilance to win the battle against insect pests
 and blights of one sort or another,
 but one fragrant, dewy rose makes it all worth while. A bowl of them gives immeasurable pleasure. The vegetable garden may yield only enough sweet corn for two or three meals—but such sweet corn! Cut just before dinner, promptly cooked
 and served with plenty of butter at hand, the garden roasted ears are incomparably delicious.

The true secret of the seed cata-log's charm lies in the proved satisfaction of gardening. A pocket guide to wildflowers contains lovely pictures of lovely flowers, but no one ever glances over it as your confirmed
 Mr. and Mrs. Gardener glaze over the seed catalog which speaks to them of gardening adventures of other years
 and fresh adventures ahead.

REFUNDING.

Our federal government has been able, along with its lavish spending,
 to do some thrifty saving by refunding many billions of indebtedness at lower interest rates. Its example has been followed by some of the states, and lately many local governments are doing the same thing.
 There is often an interest saving of 1 or 2 per cent.

This enables the cities, villages,
 counties, school districts and other taxing units often to carry a larger debt at no greater cost, or it reduces
 the cost of carrying old bonded debt.
 The result shows in tax easement. Many private corporations have been able to do likewise. Most private debtors, though, are still paying at the same rates agreed to before the depression. They are wondering when the easement will work down
 to them, and they can refund their mortgages and unpaid notes at desation rates.

PRIVATE WAR LOANS REPAYED

One of the interesting facts disclosed in that Washington munitions inquiry is that J. P. Morgan and Company collected their foreign loans. That is, except some Russian loans, made to the czarist government and repudiated by the Soviet government. Of loans managed by this firm with several foreign nations, chiefly Great Britain and France, amounting to more than $1-500,000,000 every dollar was repaid.

Uncle Sam was not so shrewd, or not so lucky. The same countries still owe more than $10,000,000,000
 that our federal government lent
 them in cash or credit, and from the present outlook will never pay any of it. While Congress is seeking permanent measures to keep this country out of war, it might also establish some kind of prohibition or embargo against our government
 making any more war loans to other countries.

FIVE YOUNG FINANCIERS

There hasn't been any depression
 for those "Money" "guins". At least, not since the benevolent Ontario government took a hold of them and appointed Mr. Alan Roy Innes and John J. A. Vail as their chairman.
 The kids, besides supporting the rest
 of their family, are now worth $130,000. Present contracts for photographing, services, portraits, etc.,
 medals, etc., better, clothes, and so on, guarantee them $200,000 by the time they are three years old. And their popularity rolls right up. By the time they are of age, if they all live, they will have accumulated millions.

Think of making so much money
 by just living. They will make a board of directors to administer their own fortune. Mr. Innes can be president of the company and Judge Vail
 secretary-treasurer. What a business set-up!

"POLITICAL PIONEERING"

Socialism seems to be growing respectable. The Cleveland News, a Republican newspaper, calls the world to observe that its city is going to be host not only to one national party convention, but two.
 The Socialists will occupy the public auditorium first, then turn it over to the Republicans. The News hands this pleasant greeting to the Reds:

The Socialist party has been a curious-poll in another sense. From year to year, more of its political ideas have been adopted by liberals
 in the Republican and Democratic parties. A city that is liberal in its outlook looks forward to entertaining the party which has done so much pioneering in political thought.

Norman Thomas, perennial pioneering candidate, will appreciate that compliment. He is always complaining about the other parties
 stealing his stuff.

PLANNING YOUR HEALTH

When the business man plans that
 his income will take care of expenses,
 he is said to budget his financial undertakings. A great many housewives work on or use a budget (weekly or monthly), putting aside
 so much for rent, for food, for fuel,
 for clothing, for medical and dental
 attention and a little for the savings bank.

By having a budget one is able to do so much and no more so that no
 worry or anxiety arises.
 It would seem then that it would be only good sense if each and every one of us were to budget our health
 and energy, so that we could do all that was possible for our health or energy to do without robbing ourselves and so causing ill health and lack of energy.

Dr. George C. Cline, in his book
 "Diseases Peculiar to Civilization," shows how the insane desire for speed of all kinds which afflicts and sometimes seems like to ruin this rather mad generation is the cause of such well recognized ailments as ulcer of the stomach and intestine,
 increase in the activity of the thyroid gland in the neck so that all the processes of the body are driven
 at an increased rate of speed, weakness of the muscular and nervous system, and brought about the knowledge of how to cure these conditions by cutting the transmission between the brain and the overdriven organs.

And for every patient suffering
 with these actual ailments above mentioned there are hundreds, perhaps thousands, who are experiencing the more or less disastrous results of having, as the saying goes, "bitten off more than they can chew," but who still go on trying to chew it.
 Among the many less serious ailments due to this "overspending" of energy are the form of constipation
 where the wall of the intestine
 keeps closed or contracted, spasm of the lower end of the tube which carries the food from the mouth to the stomach, many cases of migraine or one-sided headache, and most cases of mucous colitis (inflammation of the lining of the lower bowel).

The treatment is for the physician
 to show the patient that it is over-spending of energy in work or play
 that is causing the symptoms, and to assist him to reorganize or budget
 his life and energies.

Parents' Origin
 The word "parent" is derived from the Greek word "pater" meaning
 "father" and "mater" meaning "mother".
 It is a very old word and has been in use since the time of the Greeks.
 It is a word that is used in many languages and is a word that is common to all people.

THE BOOMERANG CLUB
BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

SYNOPSIS: While playing golf
 on the 18th, Bobby Jones discovers a man lying injured at the bottom of a chasm. The doctor goes for help, and while he is gone
 the man, who is a stranger, gets up and goes to the house of his father, who is a doctor at the hospital, and when a pleasant stranger shows up he is given a check for his bill and sent to the hospital. But he has seen a photograph of the man's pocket, the face of which has a strange, haunting look.

Chapter Three

ENTER FRANKIE

"SORRY, Dad," Bobby broke in,
 speaking cheerfully and breezily
 as was his habit on matters what the subject. "Not my fault this time.
 I was keeping guard over a corpse."
 "You were what?"
 "Keeping guard over a blighter who stepped over the cliff. You know—the place where the chas-
 m is, by the seventeenth tee. There was a bit of mist just then, and he must have gone straight on and over."
 "Good heavens," cried the Vicar.
 "What a tragedy! Was the man killed outright?"
 "No. He was unconscious. He died
 just after Dr. Thomas had gone off.
 But of course I felt I had to squat
 there—couldn't just push off and

Bobby fell in on nanda and knees.

leave him. And then another fellow came along, so I passed the job of chief mourner on to him and legged
 it here as fast as I could."

The Vicar sighed.
 "Oh, my dear Bobby!" he said.
 "Will nothing shake your deplorable callousness? It grieves me more than I can say. Here you have been brought face to face with death—
 with sudden death. And you can joke about it! It leaves you unmoved.
 Everything—everything, however solemn, however sacred, is merely a joke to your generation."

Bobby shuffled his feet.

If his father couldn't see that of course you looked about a thing because you had felt badly about it—well, he couldn't see it! It wasn't the sort of thing you could explain.
 With death and tragedy about you,
 you had to keep a stiff upper lip.

But what could you expect? Nobody over fifty understood anything
 at all. They had the most extraordinary ideas.

"I expect it was the war," thought Bobby loyally. "It upset them and they never got straight again."

"Sorry, Dad," he said with a clear-
 eyed realization that explanation
 was impossible.

The Vicar felt sorry for his son—
 he looked so abashed; but he also felt ashamed of him. The boy had no conception of the seriousness of life. Even his apology was cheery and impatient.

They moved towards the Vicarage, each making enormous efforts
 to find excuses for the other.

The Vicar thought, "I wonder when Bobby will find something to do..."

Bobby thought, "Wonder how much longer I can stick it down here..."

Yet they were both extremely fond of each other.

BOBBY did not see the immediate sequel of his adventure. On the following morning he went up to town, there to meet a friend who was thinking of starting a garage
 and who fancied that Bobby's cooperation might be valuable.

After settling things to everybody's satisfaction, Bobby caught
 the 11:30 train home two days later.
 He caught it, true, but only by a very narrow margin.

He arrived at Paddington when the clock announced the time to be

11:25, dashed down the subway, emerged on No. 3 platform just as the train was moving, and buried himself at the first carriage he saw.
 He was a headless, indignant ticket-collector and porters in his immediate rear.

Wrenching open the door, he fell
 in on hands and knees, placed himself up, the door was shut with a slam by an agile porter, and Bobby found himself looking at the sole
 other occupant of the compartment.

It was a first-class carriage and in the corner facing the engine sat a dark girl smoking a cigarette. She had on a red skirt, a short green jacket
 and a brilliant blue beret, and despite a certain resemblance to an orangutan's monkey (she had long, sorrowful, dark eyes and a puckered-up face) she was distinctly attractive.

In the midst of an apology, Bobby broke off.

"Why, it's you, Frankie!" he said.
 "I haven't seen you for ages."

"Well, I haven't seen you. Sit down and talk."

Bobby grinned. "My ticket's the wrong color."

"That doesn't matter," said
 Frankie kindly. "I'll pay the difference for you."

"My manly indignation rises at the thought," said Bobby. "How could I let a lady pay for me?"

"It's about all we seem to be good for these days," said Frankie.

"I will pay the difference myself,"
 said Bobby heroically as a burly figure in blue appeared at the door
 from the corridor.

"Leave it to me," said Frankie.

SHE smiled graciously at the ticket-collector, who touched his hat as he took the piece of white cardboard from her and panned it.
 It here as fast as I could."

"Mr. Jones has just come in to talk to me for a bit," she said. "That won't matter, will it?"

"That's all right, your ladyship.
 The gentleman won't be staying long. I expect." He coughed tact-fully. "I shan't be round again till after Bristol," he added significantly.

"What can be done with a smile!"
 said Bobby as the official withdrew.

Lady Frances Derwent shook her head thoughtfully.

"I'm not so sure it's the smile,"
 she said. "I rather think it's the habit of tipping everybody five shillings whenever he travels that does it."

"I thought you'd given up Wales
 for good, Frankie."

Frances sighed. "My dear, you know what it is. You know how mouldy parents can be. What with that and the bathroom in the state
 they are, and nothing to do and nobody to see—and people simply won't come to the country to stay nowadays! They say they're econo-mizing and they can't go so far. Well,
 I mean, what's a girl to do?"

Bobby shook his head, sadly recognizing the problem.

"However," went on Frankie, "after the party I went to last night, I thought even home couldn't be worse."

"What was wrong with the party?"

"Nothing at all. It was just like any other party only more so. We had dinner at the Savoy, and we went on from there to the Marcote, and we went on from there to the Bull Ring—I tell you, Bobby, it's not good enough."

Board of Managers
Of Home for Aged
In Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Board of Managers of The Home for the Aged was held at The Home on Washington avenue on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Fred Holcomb, first vice-president, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. F. B.
 Matthews.

The annual report of the secretary,
 Mrs. William Simmons, was as follows:

Madam President, and Members of the Board of Managers of the Home for the Aged in Ulster
 county:

The meetings of this board were held regularly, the last Thursday in each month, with the exception of November and December. In November, because of Thanksgiving Day,
 the regular meeting was held one week earlier. In December, owing to the holiday season the meeting was omitted, to be merged into the annual meeting in January.

The Home for the Aged can receive thirty-six guests, and it is always filled. When a vacancy occurs
 by death, or from any other cause,
 the place is taken at once by the next in turn. This list is compiled in the order of application, and there are no exceptions made in entering.
 The year began with a waiting list
 of thirty and ended with thirty-eight. On February 3rd, death claimed one of our number and this vacancy was filled by the next on the waiting list. There has been some illness, largely due to the infirmities
 of age, but little of a serious nature.

A Visiting Committee from the Board of Managers is appointed each month, and this committee never fails to report the harmony and homelike atmosphere which here prevails. This is largely due to the management of Mr. and Mrs. Parkes, whose wise judgment and kindly
 sympathy is everywhere manifest.

The Entertainment Committee has presented some pleasant entertainments, and these have been supplemented by various churches and organizations which have willingly
 given their services to bring joy
 into the lives of these elderly people,
 most of them shut-ins.

In the early part of the year a drive for money to cover the deficit
 of 1934 was conducted by Mrs. D. N.
 Matthews. To her untiring efforts,
 and to her faithful assistants, great credit is due for raising not only the required amount but adding to the treasury.

We thank the donating public for responding to our needs at this time.
 In June a lawn festival was planned but owing to rain this annual event was held in the building.

Socially it was a great success, and financially it netted the Home a goodly sum. October 24 was designated as Annual Donation Day.
 Many generous responses were made to this appeal. The Board is grateful to all those who contributed at this time and hopes these yearly contributions may become a fixed obligation in the budgets of those interested.

Our friends are many. To the doctors, who are so ready and willing to serve when called; to the Ministers, and in this connection we would make special mention of the Rev. Palmer, Steketee, Young and Mrs. Elsie Pultz, who are each giving one Sunday evening a month to hold a service; to organizations and individuals who have held services
 during the year, and to all persons who have shown an interest by giving a helping hand or a cheery word,
 we hereby offer our deepest appreciation. The Kingston Freeman and Daily Leader are most kind in doling our printing. As this is one of the outstanding aids in our work, we wish to thank them especially.

We cannot close this report without making mention of our sorrow
 over the passing of three of our valued trustees, Mr. J. D. Schoonmaker, Mr. D. N. Matthews and Mr.
 F. B. Matthews. They were among those who made this beautiful building and its equipment possible. We shall miss their financial aid and their ever ready advice, and while we deplore their loss we can truly say of them, "Their works do follow them."

As these and other benefactors
 pass from the scene from year to year, others are needed to take their places. If the successors cannot give in such a large measure, a greater number is needed to bestow their similar contributions. We have faith to believe that this generation will be met by an ever generous public,
 which has no wish other than to see
 this worthy institution prosper.

Respectfully submitted,
 ISABEL MYERS SIMMONS,
 Secretary.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON — MARYLAND'S
 Wendell, ruddy complexioned
 young Senator Millard Tydings, until a few weeks ago the senate's most eligible bachelor, was still honey-mooning when congress swung into action, but keep an eye on him during this session.

Next to the 73-year-old Carter
 Glass of Virginia, Tydings is probably the most outspoken Democrat in that body. There are a lot of things about the Roosevelt administration he doesn't like, and he says
 so on the slightest provocation.

He's likely to provide some real
 fireworks as the session progresses.

Quick-tempered, he more than once has locked horns with both his Democratic and Republican colleagues. As a matter of fact, he traces his public career from the day
 he was made a target for an ink
 bottle

Ask the man who "owns one" if he's got it paid for.

The automobile driver who cannot talk to back seat occupants without turning his head better keep his mouth shut. Many accidents have resulted from such carelessness. The place for the driver to look constantly is always in front.

Rider—Go easy, this hill's not so bad.
Driver—Can't slow down—the brakes aren't working.
Rider—You don't mean to say.
Driver—Oh, don't worry—the horn's all right.

Part of almost any community's parking problem would be solved if business men and their employees took up pedestrianism.

Husband—My dear wife, I've taken you over all the rough places of life, haven't I?
Wife—Yes—I don't believe you've missed one of them.

Our idea of a reckless automobile driver is the fellow who tries to blow his way through traffic with his horn. Some horns should not only not be allowed to drive cars, and especially without a horn.

Wife—What good did it do you to haul out that driver; he couldn't hear you?
Husband—No, but he's sure going to have to wash his face after that dirty look I gave him.

Confound these smart drivers who will dash up to a red light about 40 miles an hour and stop right on the line but leaving the impression that he intends to run over the light and everything else. That kind of driver is usually safe, but looks reckless, which is almost as bad as being so.

We agree with that Indiana judge who ruled that a wooden leg does not bar a man from operating an automobile. It is wooden heads that cause most of the trouble.

but you don't have to circle a dozen blocks a dozen time with it, and then leave it a mile from where you are going.

Stranger (to a local woman who had answered the doorbell where a room was advertised for rent)—Good morning! Would you like to buy some insect powder?
Local Woman (snapping)—No! I have no use for that stuff!
Stranger—Good! I will take that room you are advertising.

Inmate (of the asylum to the janitor)—Say, Janitor, is that clock right?
Janitor—Yes.
Inmate—Then what's it doing here?

The cause or the reason for it may be debatable and even remain so for years to come, but the fact of business and industrial improvement is no longer a question for argument.

Hank—George wants to borrow $5 from me, Sam. Is he good for that amount?
Sam—Well, maybe, with proper securities.

Hank—What kind?
Sam—A chain, a padlock, a pair of handcuffs, and a good watch-dog.

The only place where some people are willing to take a back seat is in church. A distorted truth works more damage than a straight lie. A champion is a fellow who gets licked three times a week and keeps right on calling himself a champion. A thing that makes your anger hum is to step upon a wad of gum. Compliment a man or a woman sufficiently and you have made a friend for life. Some men never worry about the depression while the hunting is good.

Judge—Have you a lawyer to represent you?
Prisoner—No. Your Honor, I have made up my mind to tell the truth.

Most fellows know the boss well enough to call him by his first name—but they don't.

Banking Contest

According to announcements made at the regular A and B assemblies this week the results of the recent inter-class banking contest are as follows: Seniors, 50 per cent; Juniors, 47 per cent; sophomores, 39 per cent; freshmen, 46 per cent.

As soon as the new term opens, the seniors and freshmen will hold mock burial services in assembly for the less fortunate Juniors and sophomores.

Safety First Contest

Dame Rumor, the high school newspaper, recently sponsored a safety first contest, aided by the faculty members of the English department. There were many entries submitted and the following winners were selected: Eleanor Franz, first prize; consisting of $1 and a Dame Rumor subscription for next term; Hilda Flimbach and Theresa Bruckner, honorable mention and a Dame Rumor subscription for next term.

Paul Siple Addresses Students

On Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock Paul Siple, who twice accompanied Byrd to the Antarctic regions, gave a lecture to a large gathering of students and interested friends.

After an introduction by Scout Executive Wright of the Ulster-Greene Council, Boy Scouts of America, Mr. Siple opened his address by painting vivid pictures of the Antarctic region as discovered by exploration of certain mountains. The diet of the men on the expedition, their clothes, foot wear and manner of living were related in a very interesting manner. Mr. Siple told of the finding of bird and plant life, of the risks of encountering ice crevasses and closed his lecture with a very amusing description of penguins and their life habits.

Chess Club

The Chess Club held a meeting in Room 31 last Friday after school. Due to the resignation of William Stahl as vice president, Colinda Gaynor was elected to serve in that capacity. The varsity chess team consists of Leonard Davis, Norman Rafalowski, Ida Chandler, David Kotler and Bill Reynolds. Tournaments with Saugerties and Newburgh are in prospect for the near future.

Alumni Notes

In the last issue of Dame Rumor a very gratifying list of recent alumni who are successful in the activities of their various colleges was published. This list includes: Harold Baltz, former Kingston star, holds a position on the St. Lawrence football team. Ruth Flicker, who is attending Middlebury College, is very much interested in the different Outing Clubs at the school.

Reit McFadden is in the orchestra at the same school.

Elbert Haubrock, who is studying aeronautical engineering at Albama, has been elected vice-president of his fraternity, Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Sam Maroon played varsity tackle on the Columbia football team.

Allen Lewis, who is majoring in chemistry at State College, is graduating as the Valedictorian of his class.

Allan Hoerker has just pledged to the Sigma Phi Epsilon at Dartmouth. Huldah Hoerker has taken quite an interest in extra curricular work at the University of New Hampshire.

She belongs to the "Mask and Dagger," a dramatic society; an Outing Club, and has just been elected president of the Glee Club.

Ethel Jackson was given much praise for her work in conducting the Oberlin College orchestra in a concert given at that college.

Herb Greenwald has been elected Class Politician at his fraternity house at Penn.

MT. MARION

Mt. Marion, Jan. 18.—The regular meeting of the Mt. Marion P. T. A. was held in the schoolhouse on Tuesday evening, January 15, with 38 members present. The reports were given and no business introduced. The Rev. Harvey Hoffman, minister of the Mt. Marion Reformed Church, introduced the speaker for the evening, who was the Rev. Eugene Duray, former missionary to Japan and at present pastor of the Blue Mountain Reformed Church. He spoke very interestingly on Japan and Japanese customs. Later he answered questions anyone desired to ask him. A vote of thanks was extended him by the audience. Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

The Young People's Association held a meeting at the home of Warren Myer on Wednesday evening, January 15. They elected the Rev. Harvey Hoffman as their new leader and Mrs. Hoffman as assistant leader. An interesting open discussion was held on "racial prejudices" and nearly all the young people joined in with their views. It was closed with the resolution that the Christian religion has no room for race or color line and all men are brothers. Catherine Myer and the Rev. and Mrs. Harvey Hoffman were then initiated for the entertainment of the others. Games were played and refreshments served and a very good time was enjoyed. The next meeting will be held the second Wednesday in February at the parsonage.

Mrs. Abram Bogart is visiting her father and sister in Richmond Hill, L. I.

Mrs. Mary Bogart of Lake Katrine is visiting her son, Abram, in Mt. Marion this week.

Erle Butler of Michigan is visiting with his sister, Mrs. Harvey Hoffman, for a time.

VERSATILE GOWN WORN TO DINNER AND DANCE.

London (AP).—A simple gown with a broken sleeve line and a draped scarf which can be arranged to cover a low cut back expresses the latest trend in double-date fashions. It is becoming more popular than the sizeless gown and coat.

This dress is cozy for dinner when the scarf is looped at the neck and hangs behind. For dancing the scarf is rearranged and draped about the waist to reveal the low-cut back.

HAUPTMANN REPRIEVE DELIVERED

Clerk Albert Hermann (left) is shown delivering to Col. Mark O. Kimberling, principal keeper of New Jersey Penitentiary at Trenton, the reprieve order signed by Gov. Harold G. Hoffman delaying for 30 days the electrocution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the Lindbergh baby murder. In reality, legal authorities say, the delay will be longer because Hauptmann must now be resentenced. (Associated Press Photo.)

FACSIMILE OF REPRIEVE ORDER

TO BRUNO RICHARD HAUPTMANN:

Pursuant to the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution of this State, I do hereby grant you a reprieve from the sentence of death heretofore imposed upon you and to be carried out during the week beginning the twelfth day of January, 1936, to the fifteenth day of February, A. D. 1936.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and privy seal this sixteenth day of January, A. D. 1936.

Harold G. Hoffman
Governor of the State of New Jersey.

Attest: Robert Lagay
Secretary to the Governor.

SHAKE HANDS AFTER REPRIEVE

Early Grown Onions Will Bring the Fewest Tears

Onions bring tears to the eyes because of the powerful volatile oil they contain—but their "strength" depends somewhat upon when and where they are grown.

"Onions grown during the winter, spring, and early summer have a milder odor than those of the same variety grown later in the summer," says W. R. Beattie, of the bureau of plant industry, United States Department of Agriculture. "Hot growing temperatures enable the onion to produce more of the tear-producing oil than cooler temperatures."

Onions that come from onions are raised by a variety of methods, and the German chef, who distilled more than a ton of onions to obtain less than one-tenth of a pint of pure oil. A drop of this oil is said to be enough to make the odor of onions noticeable throughout several large buildings.

One variety of Italian red onion is almost odorless when grown in its native Italy, but decidedly stronger when grown in this country. The most pungent varieties grown in the United States are the Red Globe, White Pearl, and the Spanish onion, and in the milder group are the Italian Red and sweet Spanish types.

UNUSUAL PLACE FOR ICE DELIVERY

The driver of this truck was delivering a cake of ice to the Chicago park district administration building when the five-ton vehicle skidded backward and did a bit of delivering all its own. But of all places, it carried its cargo off a bulkhead into a lagoon already choked with exactly the same wares. (Associated Press Photo)

CONGRESS PROBES SILICOSIS SPREAD

BELIEVE WORKERS HERE DOOMED

This power plant is part of a project at Gwaley Bridge, W. Va., where many workers are believed doomed by silicosis, according to testimony of Philippa Allen, New York social worker, before a House labor subcommittee. It was alleged by one congressman that 476 workers had died of the malady, caused by breathing into the lungs particles of silica sand, a large vein of which workers drilled through while digging a three-mile tunnel. Main Issues Noted In Presidential Race

New York, Jan. 18 (AP)—John D. M. Hamilton, general counsel of the Republican national committee, said today the basic issues of the 1936 election will be "recovery, wasteful spending, and centralized government."

Hamilton, also national committeeman from Kansas, expressed his view in a speech prepared for delivery at the 15th anniversary luncheon of the Women's National Republican Club.

"Recovery is the greatest problem bearing on the present state of the Union," he said.

"Governmental waste and spending is the greatest problem bearing on the future state of the Union. And centralized government is the greatest problem bearing on the Union itself as we know it—an indestructible union of indestructible states."

Hamilton sharply criticized some of the New Deal methods.

"Dark Horse" for G. O. P., Says Fess

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—A wide open race for the Republican presidential nomination, with the ultimate selection of a "dark horse" candidate was forecast today by Simon D. Fess, former Ohio senator and former chairman of the Republican national committee.

Without discussing candidates by name, Fess forecast that some of those now in the field would be discarded to make way for a more out-and-out anti-New Dealer.

Fess discussed the political situation in an interview in the President's room just off the Senate chamber, where for many years he was a leading spokesman for his party.

He made it plain he was keeping his hands off the race and was not lining up for any particular candidate.

Wooden Shoes of Holland Put to Variety of Uses

The Hollanders' wooden shoes, or klompen, serve more purposes than merely to protect the feet, states a writer in the Chicago Daily News. They can be, and sometimes are, used as weapons of defense. A Dutch David will get even with a Dutch Goliath by aiming the first klomp, and when the wooden shoe is used for the same purpose that other people use fists, it can be said that the fight is on a more equal footing.

In their old age klompen add much gaiety to the life of the children who live in this land of canals, for they constitute most of the sail-boats of youngsters. They also bring amusement to many travelers, for when boats pass through the lock of a canal the tollkeeper is as likely as not to dangle over them an old klomp from the line of a fishing rod. The boat owner then puts the toll in it.

Klompen are seldom seen in cities except on market days, when country men come to town. They look very uncomfortable to city folk, but country people think nothing of jumping over a 4-foot fence without using their heavy, unlaced footgear. In some sections klompen are skillfully carved and form quite as decorative a part of the costumes of girls as do their quaint lace bonnets. The Hollanders would certainly lose many a foothold on life without their klompen.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

Bright's Brighter Now
Tallahassee, Fla.—Judge W. B. Johnson has decided $3,405 which Sheriff W. M. Inman has been holding belongs to Irvin Bright, negro chef at the governor's mansion.

Bright, from whom the cash was taken after an automobile accident, said the money represented his life's savings. Sheriff Inman refused to return it because he said Bright told varying stories about the source of the bills.

Bright sued, the judge ruled, and the sheriff turned over the roll.

Two Little Pigs
St. Joseph, Mo.—Police Chief Charles A. Enos scratched his head every time he heard squeals of a pig tied to his desk. He was trying to think of a new member for the Elks' lodge. When he signs a new member, he can pass the pig on to another membership drive contestant. When the contest ends, the winning team will dine on the barbecued pigs. The losers will eat beans.

A Postman's Holiday
New York—Veteran engineers of the Erie Railroad—who have spent much of their lives plugging locomotives—came to town for convention and went for a ride on the subway.

"Just thought we wanted to see that new subway," commented C. E. Correll, head of the veterans' organization.

Undaunted by trains, the entire group planned to take another three hour ride today.

Solitary Seren
Raleigh, N. C.—Attracted by the sound of bouncing dice and exhortations of "Come on, seven!", Patrolman Oris Spence plunged into a house intending to break up a gambling game.

He found one negro, sitting on the floor shooting the gambling dominoes against the baseboard.

"No, suh, boss," the player said "I ain't shooting craps. I see jus practicing."

Vitamin D in Dolphins
Russian scientists have discovered that a certain kind of oil extracted from dolphins, small whale-like water mammals, contains more vitamin I than any other natural product.

HOLLYWOOD
SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—If walls could talk, movie people would be very careful about leasing their homes. In Hollywood, when a star or director changes residence, it is rather difficult to move into a house that has not been tenanted before by some other movie personage. If the house is brand-new, of course, that is different. But the houses of stars become known to their friends, or to friends' friends, and when these houses are vacant they are likely to appeal to people who have been in them as guests. Agents, too, can appeal to a prospective tenant with the remark that so-and-so has "just had to give up this wonderful house—and it has everything a star needs for privacy, entertaining, and just living."

Elsie Janis owns a Beverly Hills house in which Norma Shearer and Irving Thalberg once lived. The Thalbergs moved to their beach mansion, and the Leslie Howards moved in. Now the Otto Krugers live there.

Garbo's Homes Numerous

The elaborate residence of Estelle Taylor and Jack Dempsey (before they were divorced) now is owned by Miss Taylor, but the occupants are Mr. and Mrs. Basil Rathbone.

Former residences of Greta Garbo are numerous, as the star moves frequently to escape the inquisitive eyes of sightseers determined to catch a glimpse of her. Miriam Hopkins, who followed Garbo in one of her houses, noted why the Swede had left: the sightseers had found her hiding-place.

Lois Moran is married and on the stage now, but her Beverly Hills home—with its music room—appealed to Paul Cavanagh as a place to live. The house to which Lew Cody brought his bride, Mabel Norman, has been remodeled and modernized almost beyond recognition—by Sally Eilers and Harry Joe Brown, who were good friends of the departed couple.

Crosby Building

Bing Crosby took one of Marlon Davies' homes as a residence preparatory to building anew for his family. Colleen Moore's Bel-Air mansion has been the rented home of several movie celebrities, including Marlene Dietrich, Sam Katz, the producer, and Sari Maritza, newly wed of last year, leased the Beverly Hills home of Adrienne Ames, one of the year's divorcees.

But to date, Pickfair is still the home of Mary Pickford, and has not been otherwise occupied. It was for sale, you recall, at the time of her divorce. But the "For Sale" sign was taken down.

New Term Registrants

On Wednesday morning, January 29, at 8:30 o'clock, both new and former students report at the high school. There will be single sessions during the entire first week of school, dismissing in time for the lunch hour. Cafeteria service will be resumed on Monday, February 3.

POLICE STOP HER 'MOVIE CAREER'

Twelve-year-old Phyllis Lige, who took $71 from her mother's purse in New York and ran away to Hollywood to become a movie star, is shown after she was nabbed by Los Angeles police almost within sight of her destination. She carried a picture of Franchot Tone and claimed kinship with him. (Associated Press Photo)

At The Theatres

Today
Broadway: "Magnificent Obsession." Lloyd C. Douglas, minister turned novelist and now recognized as one of the finest authors of today, should be proud of this Universal picture that has been made into an inspiring screen drama as it closely follows the novel through the sweep and strength of a woman's love and brings to life one of the most unusual romances in modern fiction. A brilliant starring team of Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor leads a carefully chosen cast of supporting players through the intricate plot structure of the story and Miss Dunne's performance proves all over again her reputation as one of the cinema's ranking actresses. And handsome Robert Taylor rises to a new high with his portrayal. Others include Betty Furness, Charles Butterworth, Ralph Morgan, Henry Armetta, Arthur Treacher and Sara Haden. John M. Stahl produced and directed the picture. Excellent adult entertainment.

Orpheum: "The Great Kirma" and "The Great Kirma." Roger Pryor and Lella Hymes strive desperately in the movie offering at the Orpheum and out of it all comes an unconvincing story of easy money and of a broke reporter who comes into the job of spending $1000 per minute for 12 hours "Kirma The Great" continues to be the main attraction and his stage show is a blend of mystery, feats of skill and a general air of puzzlement.

Kingston: "Ah Wilderness." This Eugene O'Neill play, so successful on Broadway, becomes a motion picture high light because its adaptation to the screen has been perfect through the joint efforts of Hunt Stromberg, its producer, and Clarence Brown, its director. The play is a glimpse into the life of an ordinary middle class Connecticut family. The family moves along the familiar rut most average American families adhere to until the son gets the pangs of adolescent love, hurt by what seems to be a broken ideal in his love for a girl, in disillusionment he goes in for a bit of wild living on a grand scale until his background and his strong family influence combine to straighten out his momentary lapse. Lionel Barrymore, as the father, contributes the outstanding characterization of the show but he is pressed for honors by both Wallace Berry and Aline MacMahon. Others in the cast are Mickey Rooney, Erle Lunden, Frank Albertson, Cecelia Parker, Charles Grapewin and Spring Byington. A don't miss attraction.

Tomorrow
Broadway: Same.
Orpheum: "Death from Distance." Melodramatic thrills follow in quick succession in the Orpheum feature, a highly imaginative tale with Lola Lane and Russell Hopton sharing the leading honors. Other attractions include "Fighting Marines," a cartoon, a variety short and a news reel.

Kingston: Same.

Fingerprints Crafted
on Back of Man's Hand

Indianapolis—Richard Grove, age twenty-eight, two of whose fingers were amputated 14 years ago, was arrested on a minor charge and provided police Bertillon clerks with a complete set of ten fingerprints.

A clerk had recorded the amputations, when Grove explained that didn't mean prints of those fingers were unavailable.

Grove pointed to the back of his hand. Grafted there after a disfigurement accident 14 years ago, the skin of the amputated fingers still thrives, with the two finger whorls up near the wrist.

CAPITAL NEWS

HOLLISTER STURGES, Jr.
Albany, Jan. 18 (Special) Some of the telegraph messages that come to reporters at the Capitol from their city desks turn out to be very amusing.

One reporter recently was asked to write a thousand word story just as he was leaving after 12 hours of work. He answered his editor to that effect. In a few moments the reply came to send 500 words, have two night caps on the paper, and call it a day. Bolstered by this thought, the reporter sent 1,100 words.

Another time two New York papers disagreed on the number of words contained in one of the governor's messages. One reported 15,000; the other 18,000. An inquiry was made by the former, whose desk man added, "please advise on number of words in governor's crime message." This was just when the AAA decision was being sent up from Washington, "I think," went on the wire from New York. "The governor has committed a major crime himself to write 16,000 words on anything at a time like this."

A prominent New Yorker and former Albanian was taken ill recently. To the Albany man of one of the newspapers wired for an obituary. The man, taken critically ill, is still living, but this paper is prepared now in the event of death.

One wire message said, "send Shrewsbury bride." This meant that an Albany girl was marrying a man from Shrewsbury, Mass., and a Boston paper wanted an account of the wedding.

It is not infrequent that after a story is filed a query will come back, "what the hell do you mean by this?" The embarrassed sender must then rewrite his whole story, making it absolutely clear just what is meant. Sometimes it is the reporter's fault, other times the home office is guilty.

Once in a great while it becomes necessary to rouse the chief executive from his slumbers. If a prominent person known throughout the state dies, the press immediately wants a statement from the governor. If the hour is somewhere in the early morning and last city editions are going to press, the Albany representatives are hauled out of bed and they are expected to do the same thing to the governor and get a statement. The next day is usually too late because of the afternoon competition.

So it goes, the public generally is unaware of the amusing instances behind the work of news gathering.

Legislative Review
Under seven headings may be classified the phases of the legislative session to date:

1. Crime. The governor's 60-point crime message, spearhead of his program, has been delayed because of demands by several legislators to further study this subject. Only three of the Buckley measures have passed the Senate. The Assembly is still waiting to act upon this legislation. A certain amount of jealousy between the chief executive and the Republicans, who also advocate measures to bring about crime reform in the state, has been evidenced.

2. Relief and unemployment. This subject remains deadlocked between the governor and the Republican Assembly. While further developments are pending, each is attacking to its original proposals: the governor to have the four legislative leaders and four appointed by him to make the necessary investigation of relief, which he termed in his annual message the most serious one problem of the state; and the Republican idea of having the two legislative committees of public relief and welfare plus the officers of the TERA form the investigating committee. As the governor, because of precedent, refused an emergency message to grant a $25,000 appropriation for this purpose, the Republicans continue their idea without the appropriation, and will then demand it after the 1936-1937 budget has been adopted.

3. Executive budget. Even before any public hearings are held, this budget message has drawn a good deal of fire from Republican quarters and especially from automobile interests who attack Mr. Lehman on his insistence of diverting the monies derived from gasoline taxes for purposes other than highway construction and maintenance. The present snags are found in the mire of party differences as to how the hearings should be conducted. The Republicans maintain that the Assembly should have joint hearings between the Assembly committee on ways and means, Senator John J. Dunnigan, Democratic whip, asks Speaker Irving M. Ives, why not? He will answer soon. For the lower house maintains that to get at the root of the whole business their idea of hearings must be carried out, as probably they will be.

4. Highway safety. Another recommendation of the governor is that of highway safety. Legislation for this purpose is being rapidly advanced. Provisions have been made in his budget to add a hundred troopers to the state.

5. Assembly organization. This chapter is purely Republican. There was a good deal of discord at the beginning of the session within this party's ranks, and rather a bitter fight ensued. Now, however, things have been straightened out and there has been declared a truce and differences have been patched up. Opponents can honestly point to a well-organized lower house of the Legislature, with the best men available holding down the key positions. A few were subject to have their toes stepped on, but it was believed to be for the best interests of the state generally as well as the party, and now they are all again smiling and willing to go along with each other.

6. Miscellaneous bills. Over 700 measures have been sponsored so far this year in the two chambers. On the law of averages, 20 per cent will receive the governor's signature. Senator Arthur H. Wickham, of Kingston, has introduced one such bill. This is the only legislation yet sponsored by Tiller county representatives.

7. Report of the mortgage commission. In its report to the governor and the Legislature, the commission on mortgage relief has made definite recommendations in the way of legislation to ease this problem in the state. By next week the necessary bills should be prepared for these purposes.

Public Hearings
Within the next two weeks major hearings on all anti-crime legislation will be held by joint committees of codes and judiciary of Senate and Assembly. Budget hearings will also be held by the Assembly on February 4 and 11.

Young Republicans Call For Probe of Albany County

If the Young Republicans of New York state have their way the repeated allegations of fraudulent registration and voting said to have been prevalent in Albany county in recent years, will have a thorough airing.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Governors of the Association of New York State Republican Clubs, Inc., a resolution to this effect was introduced and approved.

The resolution, introduced by Fred Meyers, Albany county Young Republican Club governor, at the request of Andrew H. Ferguson of Kingston, vice-president of the Third Judicial district, reads as follows:

"Whereas, the recent election in the Third Judicial District has demonstrated conclusively the presence in the county of Albany of a large percentage of illegal and fraudulent registrations and votes, and

"Whereas, such illegal and fraudulent registrations were primarily responsible for the defeat of an outstanding jurist for re-election to the Supreme Court bench, and

"Whereas, a report filed by Special Assistant Attorneys General with the Hon. John E. Bennett, Attorney General of the State of New York, has indicated such illegalities and fraud, and

"Whereas, a subsequent Grand Jury investigation held in the City of Albany has returned 98 indictments, charging such frauds, and

"Whereas, the said Grand Jury was selected from a panel consisting of 24 men of whom 22 were enrolled Democrats, and are known to be present or former Democratic office and job-holders, and are of known Democratic proclivities,

"Be it Resolved, that the program of this body include a resolution requesting the Legislature of the State of New York to investigate the general elections held in the City of Albany for the three years past, and to examine into and determine the extent of the abuses of the electoral franchise in the said Albany county."

It is understood that the purpose of the resolution was to form the basis for a bill calling for an investigation into Democratic machine activities in Albany county. It is assumed that in accepting and adopting the resolution the Young Republicans have made this investigation a part of their legislative program. That being the case the next move will be the introduction of a bill, in the Assembly, at least, and possibly in the Senate, providing for such an investigation.

Irving M. Ives, speaker of the Assembly, has been active in State Young Republican Club affairs and was supported by that organization at the time of the retirement of the Hon. Joseph A. McGinnies in 1934.

Founders' Day, observed by all city schools.

Miss Agnes Scott Smith will be the guest speaker. Miss Smith will tell about her trip abroad which she was on last summer. This promises to be a very interesting topic. All parents and friends are invited.
